

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE ACADEMY.

The American Academy of Political and Social Science was founded at a meeting held in Philadelphia, December 14, 1889. ^{Date of organization}

It was the outgrowth of the desire for an organization in which the widespread interest in political, economic and social discussion should find a focus. It was felt by those who called the meeting that these interests should have an organ which could properly represent this wide group of sciences, and be at the same time an intermediary between scientific thought and practical effort. In many fields, earnest men and women were at work in various reform movements, without co-operation, and, above all, without the sympathy and support of those pursuing allied interests, whether in a practical or a theoretical way.

These considerations were laid before the preliminary meeting held in December, 1889, and led to the foundation of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. ^{The Academy idea} The Academy form of organization was adopted advisedly. It was not the intention of the founders to form an exclusive and small body of experts on these subjects, but to make the Academy idea thoroughly democratic. This, it is true, is something of a departure from the current notion of an Academy as developed by learned bodies, both in this country and abroad. Nevertheless it is desired to maintain the essential principle of all Academies, namely, co-operation and mutual fellowship among the members. The council determined to admit to the American Academy of Political and Social Science anyone of high or humble station, of great or small intellectual attainments, providing only that a sincere interest in the search for light and truth concerning social and economic questions was manifest. The data of the social sciences are so widely distributed in time and space and are to be derived so directly from the experience and thought of individuals in all stations of life, that it probably lies within the range of possibility for every human being who will observe and reflect upon the commonest experiences of every-day life to contribute something to the sum of knowledge on these subjects. It is therefore, one of the objects of the Academy to stimulate and direct such observation and reflection on the part of all those who come in touch with this work that they may become, first of all, more intelligent citizens, and secondly, that each member may be willing to assist any other member, through the medium of our publications and, when called upon, through correspondence, in the securing of information from all quarters bearing on social and economic problems. The present large membership, widely distributed geographically, has enabled us to realize already in some small measure this large ideal.

Philadelphia
Social Science
Association affiliated

At the first meeting the Constitution of the Academy was adopted, officers elected and methods of work outlined. Soon after the foundation of the Academy, a proposition was received from the Philadelphia Social Science Association, looking to a merging of that organization with the newly formed Academy. This proposition was accepted, the members of the Philadelphia Social Science Association becoming members of the Academy, and the publications of the older association passing into its control. A record of the useful and honorable career of the Philadelphia Social Science Association was prepared by Mr. Joseph G. Rosengarten and published in the ANNALS for April, 1891.

Membership

With this nucleus for a membership, the Academy started under fair auspices, and the rapid growth which soon followed more than justified the hopes of its founders. With each increase in membership it has been possible to extend the scope and usefulness of the Academy's work. The record of activity since the foundation of the Academy has been one of constant growth and expansion. Through the active co-operation of its members and of scholars throughout the world, it has been able to pursue the aims of its founders with a degree of success which is cause for congratulation. We stand, however, at the beginning of our work. Deep problems of varied character beset modern society, and the intelligent consideration of them demands an unremitting intellectual labor.

Aims

The object of the Academy, as stated in its by-laws, is the promotion of the political and social sciences, in the comprehensive sense of those terms. It has sought to stimulate discussion through its public meetings, and to foster scientific research through its publications. In both of these chief avenues of its activity it has been singularly successful.

Meetings

The meetings of the Academy have been held at irregular intervals through the winter months in the city of Philadelphia.

At the outset several papers were often read at each meeting, but experience has shown that unless the topics of the papers are related, and furnish the basis of a common discussion, this plan has its disadvantages. More recently each meeting has been devoted to a single topic which has been fruitful in stimulating discussion. In presenting a record of the meetings of the Academy, it has been found practicable to record only the principal speakers and the titles of their papers. Such a list shows the wide variety of topics which fall within the Academy's activity and their importance to the welfare of the community.

The meetings of the Academy have been as follows:

1. March 21, 1890.—Dr. Stuart Wood, "Theories of Wages."
Prof. S. N. Patten, "Decay of Local and State Governments in the United States."
2. April 29, 1890.—Prof. F. H. Giddings, "Province of Sociology."
Prof. E. J. James, "A New System of Passenger Fares."

74. April 13, 1901 (8 p. m.).—Hon. Orville H. Platt and Mr. Charles M. Pepper, "The Races of the West Indies."

The five annual meetings of the Academy, held in the month of April each year since 1897, have become a most important feature of the Academy's work and have attracted wide attention as notable public gatherings from the press of the whole country. They have enabled the Academy to group four sessions around a single topic, different aspects of which could thus be thoroughly discussed; and yet the meeting as a whole, and the volume containing a verbatim report of its proceedings, constitute a comprehensive and unified contribution to an important public question. At the first annual meeting the idea of adopting a single general topic was not primarily in the minds of the Committee; but most of the papers ranged themselves about the topic of the annual address, given by the President of the Academy, Professor Edmund J. James, on the subject of "The Training for Citizenship."

The second annual meeting was devoted to the subject, "The Study and Teaching of Sociology"; the third to the subject of "The Foreign Policy of the United States—Political and Commercial"; the fourth to the subject of "Corporations and Public Welfare"; and the fifth, in April, 1901, to a discussion of "America's Race Problems." The interest in these meetings has increased steadily, and the attendance each year becomes more representative of different sections of the country. The annual address is the central feature of the annual meeting. These have been given each year by men eminent as specialists and authorities on the subjects that are discussed, whose utterances command the thoughtful attention of the general public and are of great educational value in molding public opinion.

The following gentlemen have, upon invitation from the Committee on Meetings, given the annual address upon the dates indicated:

1. April 21, 1897.—Professor E. J. James, President of the Academy, "The Training for Citizenship."
2. April 11, 1898.—Professor Franklin H. Giddings, of Columbia University, Vice-President of the Academy, "The Practical Value of Sociology."
3. April 7, 1899.—Hon. Carl Schurz, "Militarism and Democracy."
4. April 19, 1900.—Hon. William Lindsay, U. S. Senator from Kentucky, "The Influence of Corporations on Political Life."
5. April 12, 1901.—Professor Edward A. Ross, University of Nebraska, "The Causes of Race Superiority."

These meetings have taxed the energies of the Committee on Meetings from year to year, but their conscientious labors have been rewarded by the ample success of the annual meetings and above all by the influence which the proceedings of these meetings, in published form, have exercised throughout the country. The meetings have brought together groups of experts on special questions, probably not equaled in any similar gatherings heretofore held in this country. In its editorial comment upon the meeting of 1901, one of the leading daily papers of Philadelphia called attention to the fact that the foreign policy of the United States had proceeded almost without exception along the lines laid down at the Academy's annual meeting of 1899. The Corporation volume of last year had a still wider circulation and ranks as a standard work among those alike interested in the conduct and in the control of corporations. The volume on Race Problems bids fair to excel in scientific value and in popular interest both its predecessors.

The annual meetings have, moreover, given scope for the exercise of the traditional hospitality of Philadelphia. Public-spirited individuals, the various social clubs of the city, and sister organizations, as well as the University of Pennsylvania—to which the Academy owes so much of encouragement and support in every stage and in every department of its career—have all co-operated in making these annual gatherings of the Academy pleasant and memorable events of the year.

The work of the Reception Committee of Ladies, of which Mrs. Charles Custis Harrison has been chairman for several years, is worthy of special mention. The informal receptions connected with each monthly meeting, and the larger burdens assumed by this Committee in connection with the annual meetings each year, have contributed not a little to the success of the Academy's work. The following ladies have served upon one or more of these reception committees:

Mrs. John Quincy Adams,	Mrs. Samuel McCune Lindsay,
Miss Baldwin,	Miss MacVeagh,
Mrs. Leverett Bradley,	Miss Mary T. Mason,

Publications

The publications of the Academy have been issued under the title: ANNALS of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and the Supplements to the ANNALS. In the ANNALS there have appeared a large number of papers submitted to the Academy, which have been read and discussed at its meetings, as well as many read by title only. Thus, the fruitful and stimulating influence of the Academy upon scientific research has been brought to the knowledge of its members. It would be superfluous to name here all the important contributions which have been made to political and social science through the Academy. Banking, Constitutional History, Criminology, Economic Theory, Education, Finance, Industrial History and Problems, Institutional History, International Law, Jurisprudence, Money, Municipal Government, Political Institutions, Political Science, Sociology and Social Problems, Taxation and Transportation are among the more important subjects upon which leading articles have appeared. These articles and the names of their authors are well indexed for ready reference in each separate volume of the ANNALS. The complete set of the ANNALS now comprises seventeen large volumes which constitute in themselves a good working library of the social sciences. The ANNALS are now recognized as one of the most valuable sources of material for students.

In addition to the publication of papers presented to the Academy, the editors have sought to make the ANNALS helpful to students of political and social science by furnishing as complete a record as possible of publications and events which have a bearing upon the development of those subjects. Particular attention has been given to the notice and review of books, a large part of each issue of the ANNALS being devoted to this object. In this record the varied interests of those who compose the Academy have been kept in view, and through it the cordial co-operation of scholars in all parts of the world has been enlisted in the work of the Academy. As time has progressed, the editorial conduct of the ANNALS has been strengthened, and the co-operation of an increasing number of scholars, has been obtained.

The Academy has been fortunate in preserving the continuity of editorial work, in connection with the ANNALS, and the record of its growth is a continuous one.

The first issue of the ANNALS was made in July, 1890. The Board of Editors consisted of Professor Edmund J. James, Editor-in-Chief, and Professors Franklin H. Giddings and Roland P. Falkner as Associate Editors. In the first instance, the ANNALS was issued as a quarterly. The success of the enterprise and the cordial support of scholars which was received, made it possible in the second volume, commencing with the number for July, 1891, to issue the ANNALS every other month.

In the same year the list of editors was enlarged by the addition of the name of Professor James H. Robinson. With the close of the second volume of the ANNALS, Professor Franklin H. Giddings, who had accepted a position at Columbia University, resigned as Associate Editor.

Up to this time there had been no specific distribution of the editorial work, and the care of the Book Department, in particular, had been in the charge of Professors Falkner and Robinson. With the third volume, the first issue of which was in July, 1892, the Editorial Board consisted of Professor Edmund J. James, Editor-in-Chief, Professor Roland P. Falkner and James H. Robinson as Associate Editors. No change occurred in the Editorial Board until January, 1896. But, in the meantime, a somewhat different organization of the editorial work secured the co-operation of a number of other scholars. Thus, the Book Department in Volume III. was in charge of Professor Roland P. Falkner and Dr. Emory R. Johnson. With the issue of July, 1893, which began the fourth volume of the ANNALS, Dr. Emory R. Johnson took exclusive charge of the Book Department, and remained in charge of this work until January, 1896. With the third issue of the fifth volume (November, 1894), there was established in each number of the ANNALS a Department of Notes on Municipal Government, under the charge of Dr. L. S. Rowe, and with the issue of January, 1895, a Department of Sociological Notes, under the charge of Dr. S. M. Lindsay.

The bulk of the ANNALS continued to increase so that the bound volumes became too awkward to handle, and, in accordance with a desire expressed by many readers of the ANNALS, the yearly publications have been, from July, 1895, published as two volumes annually, each volume containing three numbers.*

* The following statement shows in figures the growth of the publishing activity of the Academy :

1890-91	ANNALS,	754 pp.	Supplements,	363 pp.
1891-92	"	896 pp.
1892-93	"	852 pp.	"	148 pp.
1893-94	"	1016 pp.	"	314 pp.

1899-1900	"	918 pp.	"	208 pp.
1900-01	"	1081 pp.	"	325 pp.

With the issue of January, 1896, a series of changes was made in the editorial conduct of the ANNALS. The removal of Professor James to Chicago made it impossible for him to retain the responsibilities of Editor-in-Chief, but it was the general desire that he should continue his editorial connection with the ANNALS. He became Associate Editor, while the editorship was filled by the promotion of Professor Roland P. Falkner. Professor Robinson had, in the meantime, been called to Columbia University, New York, and found it necessary to give up his work in the ANNALS. His place as Associate Editor was filled by the appointment of Professor Emory R. Johnson, who had long been connected with the Book Department of the ANNALS. This place being thus rendered vacant, it was filled by the appointment of Professor Henry R. Seager, who had charge of the Book Department until January, 1899. Upon his resignation Dr. James T. Young was elected to succeed him, and still serves the ANNALS in that capacity. Since the November issue in 1900, Dr. Frederick A. Cleveland has been associated with Dr. Young in the conduct of the Book Department.

The resignation of Professor Falkner as editor-in-chief of the ANNALS in October, 1900, after his appointment as Chief of Public Documents in the Congressional Library, was accepted with deep regret. The vacancy was filled by the election of Professor Henry R. Seager, who had served as associate editor since 1896, and Dr. Seager assumed the duties of this important post January 1, 1901. At the same time Professor Samuel McCune Lindsay was elected Associate Editor to fill the vacancy caused by Professor Seager's promotion. This necessitated certain changes also in the editorial conduct of the various departments.

Dr. William H. Allen had already, beginning with the ANNALS for July, 1900, been associated with Professor L. S. Rowe in charge of the Department of Municipal Notes, and with the January (1901) issue, Dr. James E. Hagerty assumed charge of the Notes on Sociology. Dr. Edward T. Devine, Secretary of the Charity Organization Society of New York City, became editor of a Department of Notes on Philanthropy, Charities and Social Problems, and Dr. James T. Young, editor of a Department of Notes on Colonies and Colonial Government. With the March (1901) ANNALS a Department of Notes on Industrial Topics was added, under the editorship of Dr. Edward S. Meade.

Monographs
ments .

A distinctive feature of the work of the Academy has been the promotion of scientific research through the publication of longer monographs and articles. The editors have considered solely the scientific value of the material which has been presented to them, and have not hesitated to publish in the ANNALS itself articles whose length considerably exceeds that of the customary contribution to scientific periodicals. In addition to this there have been published from time to time, supplements devoted to various topics connected with the work of the Academy. An inspection of the list which has been published shows important contributions to statistics, economic history, transportation, constitutional law and sociology. To the Academy is due the credit of having first published in the English language a systematic work upon the subject of statistics, and of having made accessible to students of political science the constitutional laws of European nations. Not less important have been the other contributions which have been published in this form. A list of such publications up to the present time, is as follows:

- 1891.—"Public Health and Municipal Government," by Dr. John S. Billings. Pp. 23.
- 1891.—"History, Theory and Technique of Statistics," by Prof. August Meltzen; translated by Prof. Roland P. Falkner. Pp. 243.
- 1893.—"Constitution of the United States of Colombia," translated with an Historical Introduction by Prof. Bernard Moses. Pp. 70.
- 1893.—"Constitutional and Organic Laws of France," translated with an Historical Introduction by Prof. C. F. A. Currier. Pp. 78.
- 1893.—"Inland Waterways: Their Relation to Transportation," by Prof. Emory R. Johnson. Pp. 164.
- 1894.—"History of Political Economy," by Prof. Gustav Cohn; translated by Dr. Joseph Adna Hill. Pp. 142.
- 1894.—"The Theory of Sociology," by Prof. Franklin H. Giddings. Pp. 80.
- 1894.—"Constitution of the Kingdom of Prussia," translated and supplied with an Introduction and Notes by Prof. James Harvey Robinson. Pp. 54.
- 1894.—"Constitution of the Kingdom of Italy," translated and supplied with an Introduction and Notes by Prof. S. M. Lindsay and Prof. L. S. Rowe. Pp. 44.

- 1896.—"The Theory of Social Forces," by Prof. Simon N. Patten. Pp. 151.
- 1896.—"Constitution of the Kingdom of Belgium," translated and supplied with an Introduction and Notes by Prof. John M. Vincent and Ada S. Vincent. Pp. 40.
- 1897.—Handbook of the Academy. Pp. 84.
- 1898.—Handbook of the Academy. Pp. 94.
- 1899.—"The Foreign Policy of the United States, Political and Commercial." Pp. 216. Proceedings of the Third Annual Meeting.
- 1900.—"Corporations and Public Welfare." Pp. 208. Proceedings of the Fourth Annual Meeting.
- 1900.—"Selected Official Documents of the South African Republic and Great Britain," by Hugh Williams and Frederick Charles Hicks. Pp. 72.
- 1901.—"Massachusetts Labor Legislation; An Historical and Critical Study," by Sarah Scovill Whittelsey, Ph. D., Pp. 157.

From time to time Bulletins have been sent out from the ~~Bulletins~~ office of the Academy, containing notices of meetings, information concerning speakers and publications. In October, 1897, it was decided to make these Bulletins of more permanent value and to issue them at irregular intervals in uniform size and style with the Academy's other publications. The first one in the new series thus inaugurated appeared November 2, 1897, and fourteen Bulletins, aggregating 158 pages, were issued up to January 8, 1901. These were for a time edited by the First Vice-President, but are now under the general conduct of the Editors of the ANNALS. They contain notices of meetings, résumés of the discussion at meetings, answers to correspondents, especially those furnishing bibliographies on various topics, and other items of more or less permanent value for reference. Beginning with the March (1901) ANNALS, the Editors determined to open a Department of Proceedings and Business Notices in the ANNALS, and to include the material heretofore published in the Bulletins. The distinctive purpose aimed at in this department as at present constituted is the same as that described in the following paragraph, which appeared in the first number of the new series of Bulletins:

"The object of this new series of Bulletins, which begins with the present number, is to furnish members of the Academy with a channel of communication between the membership body and its officers, and between individual members. It is hoped that all members will make use of this for the purpose of securing more intimate relations between those residing at a distance, who may not be able to attend the meetings of the Academy, and those who come more frequently into contact with each other. Information concerning scientific work upon which members of the Academy may be engaged will be gladly received, especially announcements of investigations of any topic upon which members may desire to have the opinion or co-operation of other members. The officers of the Academy will welcome requests for literature on any topic or advice for the guidance of individual members or groups of members, in their private reading and study; also, criticisms of any of the Academy's publications, and suggestions looking to the improvement of the Academy's methods and to the enlargement of its usefulness."

In presenting this brief record of the work of the Academy, we are conscious that the work has been favored by the conservative policy which has retained experienced officers in their positions. Professor Edmund J. James was elected President of the Academy at its first meeting and served for eleven years.

Upon the removal of Professor James to Chicago, it was found necessary, however, inasmuch as Philadelphia is designated as the headquarters of the Academy by the charter, to invest the First Vice-President with the duties of Acting President. Professor Falkner performed these duties with great efficiency and fidelity, and at considerable personal sacrifice, during the period from February, 1896, to July 1, 1897, when, at his request, owing to the time and labor required of him as Editor of the ANNALS, he was relieved of the work of First Vice-President, and Professor Lindsay was chosen to fill the place. In January, 1901, Professor James requested that his name be not considered for re-election to the Presidency because his residence so far from the headquarters, made it increasingly difficult for him, with the growing interests of the Academy, to guide its policy. Professor Samuel McCune Lindsay, whose experience as First Vice-President and Acting President had prepared him for this work, was chosen President. Professor Leo S. Rowe was then chosen First Vice-President to fill the vacancy caused by Dr. Lindsay's promotion.

It should also be noted that the Constitution of the Academy, which was adopted at the date of organization, and before the Academy was incorporated, was abolished, and a set of by-laws adopted in its place at a Special Business Meeting in December, 1899, and ratified at the Regular Annual Business Meeting in January, 1900. This was done to harmonize the organic law of the Academy with its charter. A few changes were made in the offices. The three Secretaryships were combined into one Secretary and the office of Legal Counsel was added.

We may conclude our record with a summary statement of the officers of the Academy which shows a long continued service on the part of Professor F. H. Giddings as Second Vice-President, Mr. Stuart Wood as Treasurer, and Professor John L. Stewart as Librarian.

BY-LAWS

OF

The American Academy of Political and Social Science

1. The object of the Academy is the promotion of the political and social sciences in the comprehensive sense of those terms.

With no intention of excluding other suitable means, the following methods may be enumerated as of special importance in furthering the ends of the Society:

(1) Accumulation of a library of works pertaining to the subjects cultivated by the Academy, and, in general, the provision of facilities for research.

(2) Encouragement of investigation by the offering of prizes for specified contributions to science, and by extending pecuniary aid in suitable cases to students and investigators.

(3) Publication of valuable papers and reports presented to the Academy either by members or others.

(4) Regular meetings for the presentation and discussion of papers and other contributions to political and social science.

(5) Dissemination of political and economic knowledge throughout the community by the establishment of public lecture courses in political and social science, and by such other means as may from time to time seem expedient.

2. Any person may become a member of the Academy upon Members the proposal by any member and the approval of the directors. Annual dues of members shall be five dollars ($5.00), and all members shall be entitled to receive the regular reports of the proceedings and publications of the Academy. By the payment of one hundred dollars ($100) any person admitted to membership may become a life member of the Academy, with all privileges of members and exemption from the payment of annual dues.

3. The directors may, by a majority vote of all members, create new forms of membership at their discretion.

4. The control and management of the Academy, in accordance with the provisions of the charter and subject to the restriction of these by-laws, shall be vested in a board of directors, as provided for in the charter, to be elected by the Academy and to serve for a term of three years. After the first election the directors shall organize themselves into three classes, so that the terms of the first class shall expire at the end of one year, those of the second in two years and those of the third in three years, in order that one-third of the board shall be elected each year.

Board of Directors

24 AMERICAN ACADEMY OF POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

5. The directors shall elect a president, three vice-presidents, a secretary, counsel, a treasurer, and a librarian, who, if not directors, shall become ex-officio members of the board of directors. These officers shall be chosen for one year and shall hold office until their successors are duly qualified. They shall perform such duties as are usually assigned to such officers.

6. The directors shall submit each year at the annual business meeting of the Academy a report of their proceedings and a financial statement.

7. The directors are authorized to make all necessary rules and regulations for the conduct of the Academy and to request the co-operation of members and other persons in its work.

Advisory committee and council

8. The directors are authorized to appoint a general advisory committee of not more than twenty-five persons who shall have attained distinction in the field of political and social science, representing as nearly as may be the different countries in which the Academy has members.

9. The directors are further authorized to appoint a council of not more than fifty members of the Academy, who shall be residents of the United States and shall be known to be persons actively interested in a theoretical or practical way in the study of political and social questions. They shall be the advisors of the directors in matters pertaining to the scientific work of the Academy. They shall hold office for a period of five years, one-fifth of the number being appointed each year.

Meetings

10. The Academy shall hold its annual business meeting for the election of directors and the transaction of other business, on the third Monday of January. Special meetings may be called by the directors.

11. The scientific sessions of the Academy shall be held under the direction of the board of directors at such times and places as they may deem proper.

12. Amendments to the by-laws may be adopted by a majority Amendments of the members present at the annual meeting of the Academy. All proposed amendments must be approved in writing by at least ten members of the Academy. They shall be sent to the secretary, and submitted by him to the members of the Academy at least two weeks before the date of the annual meeting.
